

Please check our link entitled "New Information" under the "Quick Links" of the St. Rose of Lima homepage. It will keep you updated on any school information that has been newly added to the website.

In addition, you can also subscribe to our RSS News Feed. RSS stands for Real Simple Syndication (or Rich Site Summary). RSS provides a way for Web sites to let people receive summaries of new content that has been posted. This is called an RSS feed and is posted online as a text file in a format called XML. You might start to notice that a lot of Web sites have small, orange rectangles on them that say either XML or RSS. This is a link to that site's RSS feed. You can find this orange icon under the "News" link in the St. Rose of Lima "Quick Links" section of our homepage.

Subscribing to a feed allows you to receive text updates from that Web site. If you just click the link or open it in a Web browser, it might just look like jumbled text. However, there are special types of software applications called news aggregators that can read the RSS feed and display the summary for the user. People can subscribe to feeds from their favorite Web sites, so that the most current information is pushed to them.

Enjoy!
